Supplements Info – for Depression and/or Anxiety

SAM-e (Nature Made) & Q Max Premium (QSciences) & Serosyn (Metagenics)  (as of Nov 2021)

(Cover letter to go with the handout/book review Stop Depression Now: SAM-e – The Breakthrough Supplement That Works As Well As Prescription Drugs, in Half the Time...with No Side Effects)

Here is some information about some helpful supplements for reducing stress, anxiety, and depression. SAM-e is the first go-to supplement for many people. It’s been really helpful for a lot of people to just help get them through stressful times. This SAM-e supplement tends to be helpful in lifting mood and providing emotional support to most everyone that tries it—usually within the first week.

I often suggest it to clients even before trying other "prescription" antidepressants or for those who are resistant to medication. It can help boost regular antidepressants as well or allow you to lessen any side effects according to the M.D. who wrote the book Stop Depression Now (see additional SAM-e book review handout). You’ll find the additional handout on SAM-e I compiled from the book Stop Depression Now written by Richard Brown, M.D. SAM-e is a substance your body already produces (so it’s not a foreign substance to the body), but it just doesn’t produce enough of it when it is dealing with a lot of stress.

If you want to try it, start with 1 or 2 - 400 mg tablet(s) first thing in the morning about 20 minutes before eating (Nature Made brand is best and is cheapest at Costco, Amazon, or Wal-Mart). One way to do that is to keep the SAM-e and a glass of water in your bedroom or bathroom, so that it’s easy to remember when you first wake up before you even get started with your day.

You can also find additional information, research and reviews about SAM-e at: NatureMade.com or Amazon.com or Costco so that you can make your own educated decision about trying this supplement. To purchase SAM-e it’s usually cheapest at Costco. Good luck! I hope you find it to be helpful!
